

CARL LANE Fairview Park Hospital

Operating room technician Carl Lane is known for his quiet, humble nature and his dedication to serving others both in and outside of the hospital walls. Lane quickly stepped in to help a co-worker whose father was dying of cancer and had been sent home under hospice care. Each day before work, Lane would stop by the father's house to help the man bathe, shave and change his clothes, refusing to accept payment or thanks for his efforts. While he prefers to work behind-the-scenes, it is selfless acts of kindness like these that have made Lane a beloved friend and co-worker at Fairview Park Hospital.

His time away from the hospital is also spent caring for others. An active member of the Most Worshipful Prince Hall Grand Lodge Free and Accepted Masons Jurisdiction of Georgia, Lane has reached the highest level in the order for his philanthropic endeavors. Through his work with the Masons, Lane has provided food for needy families, clothing for nursing home residents and scholarships for underprivileged students. Serving on his church's benevolence committee, he finds many other ways to help those
