West Georgia Health System, Inc.

Pam Ball's compassion and caring is evident not only in her interactions with patients and co-workers, but in the way she reaches out to those in need - including a family of three strangers. On the way to dinner one night, Ball and her husband passed an accident on the interstate involving a man, woman and their young son. She insisted that they pull off to help. Ball realized the woman was unresponsive and called 911. She moved the woman out of the car and began administering CPR, while communicating with EMS and coordinating a medical helicopter to transport the woman to the nearest trauma center. She consoled the young boy who was shaken but unhurt and stabilized the man. Thanks to Ball's actions and quick thinking, those involved recovered quickly from what could have been a fatal accident.
